KENTUCKY TRACTION AND TERMINAL COMPANY

BELOVED EDUCATOR TO CELEBRATE 86TH BIRTHDAY.

With a long and useful life behind him, and prospects for at least a few more years in which to inspire and benefit his fellow men, President Emeritus James Kennedy Patterson, the "grand old man" of the University of Kentucky, of which institution he was president for more than forty years, will celebrate his eighty-sixth birthday tomorrow.

His has been a useful life—a life in which he has accomplished much and a life he can look back over with pride and with a knowledge that it has been well-spent. A most remarkable man is Dr. Patterson—scholar, writer and builder and every year he lives the world is greatly enriched.

It was he who founded what is now the University of Kentucky, served as its head until 1910 and brought it up to its present high standing alongside the leading colleges and universities of the United States, and in him the university and the students have a never-failing friend.

President Patterson was president of the university longer than any man ever held the president's chair in any other university in the United States and during that period of forty years he made thousands of friends among the students. While actively head of the University of Kentucky, Dr. Patterson was personally acquainted with most of the student body and he was always held in the highest esteem and devotion.

Throughout Paris and Bourbon county are hundreds of graduates of the old State College, who attended that institution, while Prof. Patterson was President. From these former pupils comes a paen of praises and best wishes for the welfare of the University's grand old man, whom they learned early in life to respect and esteem, and then to love for his masterful character.

RELIGIOUS.

An all-day sewing will be held today (Tuesday) by the members of the Pastor's Aid Society of the Presbyterian church. The ladies will sew for the Massie Memorial Hospital. A full attendance of the members is urged.

—Rev. Dr. Henry M. Sweets preached an eloquent sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, taking for his subject, "What Is It To Be a Christian." Following the sermon a congregational meeting was held, and a committee composed of Robert Meteer, M. Peale Collier and Dr. J. T. Vansant, was appointed to consider and recommend the selection of a pastor for the church.

IN THE SERVICE OF THEIR COUNTRY

ing steadily. Every night in the Red Cross recreation room there is something going on. Last night a string quartette, and excellent music, night before was a band concert and tonight there will be movies. Each entertainment is followed by a light lunch served by the Red Cross.

"Now, I suppose you want to hear something about my leave. Left Changy on a French express that runs between Paris and Marseilles, but after standing up for about a hundred kilos, decided to change at Lyon to the American Permissionnaire, a French train running between Dijon and Menton, but operated only for the American soldiers on leave. No more than found a place to sit down than I went to sleep, for I was forty-eight hours behind with my sleep when I left Chagny, owing to my relief man not showing up when expected. Well, when I woke up train was standing in the station in Marseilles, and the latter place being a hundred or so kilos past the place where I was supposed to change for Nimes, (the area I was assigned to), I decided to stay right on the train, which went right through to the Italian border, and see all the country possible.

"About all they could do was to send me back to Chagny or Nimes. And had my leave been cancelled when I arrived at Monaco, the point where I eventually unloaded, I would have been well satisfied with what I had done, because the beauty of the trip more than made up for anything I saw afterwards. The railroad skirts the Mediterranean Sea after getting out of Marseilles a ways, and let me tell you, folks, it is just about the most beautiful thing I've seen.

"Of course the sights of a tropical country are new to me. There may be places on the globe that are more beautiful, but this one particularly appealed to me. We passed groves and groves of olive trees, and it was quite a novel sight when getting near Monaco to look out of the car windows and see people picking oranges in their yards, then to glance ahead and see the snow-capped Alps in Italy. Nearly all the rocks that jotted out from shore were ornamented in some way. Sometimes, with a stone railing, an odd building or group of buildings. The buildings all through the country beyond Marseilles were of odd architecture, different from anything I have yet seen in France, sort of Spanish design I'd say.

"For beauty, the trip was one which I do not believe I'll ever forget. Well, I arrived at Monaco about noon and told the R. T. O. my troubles about sleeping past my junction point. They took up my pass, told me to go up town, look around, and that I'd have to leave town at nine o'clock the same night. In order not to miss any of the sights, I even passed up 'cats,' expecting to take some oranges or something on the run. Went around to the 'Y,' washed up, and by the way they have beautiful quarters at Monaco. It was formerly a Casino; don't know if that is a theatre or gambling house in that part of the country, but for the stage in one end of it, it resembled a palace.

"My next move was to take on a cog road about 2,000 feet up on a mountain. For the short time I had, I could not have made a more interesting trip. It gave me a complete view of the principality of Monaco, and of Monte Carlo, the surrounding country and the sea. Likewise a good view of the Italian coast and the Alps in Italy. At the top of this mountain, reached by the cog road, was some old Roman ruins, the remains of a tower built 12 B. C. It was almost dark when I came down off the mountain, and I had a headache second to none, partly through loss of sleep, but mostly I believe, through lack of eating. Anyway, I walked around Monte Carlo next. Saw the famous Casino where the big games are pulled off. The hours for American soldiers to go sight seeing through the gambling rooms are from 8:30 a. m. till 9:00 a. m., so I lost out on that.

"One of the natural sights of the town is a big deep ravine passing through the center of the city. I only wish I could have had one more day there, and done the town in daylight.

"It was wonderful, anyway. All the buildings are of white stone; everything was so very clean.

"I particularly wanted to see the Prince of Monaco's palace, the interior of the Casino, and a big museum of ocean life, but my time was too limited. If I'm here long enough to be entitled to another leave, I hope to see more of Southern France.

"I got out of Monaco at 9:20 p. m. and felt so rocky that I passed up Nice and Marseilles, which I had intended to attempt to take in. Arrived at Nimes about noon next day, went to bed right after supper. Guess they'll keep me here for about ten days at the hospital, but I hope to be all right soon.

"This is George Washington's birthday, and the Red Cross is giving a dance in their recreation room this afternoon, so I'll wind this up and will continue the account of my leave in my next letter.

"Love and best wishes to all.
